

Dear Sir:

OCT 25 1878

You have done us the honor to subscribe to our Magazine of American History from the beginning, and we feel confident from your great intimacy with American History, & from the interest you have always shown in it, that no one is so well qualified to give us an authoritative judgment as to the merits or shortcomings of our little periodical. May we therefore take the liberty of asking, at your leisure, your opinion on the subject. If it has any real merits your testimony to that effect would be of great value to us & would aid us in enlisting the Coöperation of the historical students and scholars of the Country. If on the other hand it has none your criticisms, or suggestions for its betterment would be equally valuable and equally acceptable.

Our second year has been a vast improvement on the first, and the third, we hope shall be even better than the second; & we feel assured that if we can only enlist the interest of the scholars of the country, we shall be to blame if we have not an historical journal of which the U.S. will be proud.

Very Respectfully Yours

A. S. Barnes & Co.
